

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An ink jet recording apparatus for effecting recording on a recording material by ejecting ink with relative scanning movement between a recording head and the recording material, the ink jet recording apparatus, including obtaining means for obtaining information indicative of an amount of ink to be ejected to each of unit areas provided by dividing an area in the neighborhood of a boundary between adjacent bands of scanning recording of the recording head on the recording material; and control means for controlling an amount of being to be ejected to the unit area on the basis of the output of the obtaining means, wherein the unit areas exist astride the boundary between adjacent one of the bands.

FD-290 (Rev. 6-22-64)